Let's see ... four bedrooms and a kitchen pantry big enough to hold most of the breakfast cereals the kids see advertised. A study where you can close the door and work without having to yell. "Hey, can you keep it down a little?" And a style that looks good even when the floor is covered in dirty clothes and building blocks. Oh yes, and tucked away – a nice big bathtub. Aromatherapy products not included.

The Robin House, Plan 6640
2,602 finished square feet
4 bedrooms plus study

- 1 The walk-in closet in bedroom 4 can become a bathroom, making the room a nice guest suite or high privilege for the eldest child.
- 2 An optional built-in desk at the top of stairs is a good, centrally located spot for the kids' computer.
- 3 Busy family = dirty clothes. Upstairs laundry = big help.
- 4 An optional deck for the master bedroom is the perfect vantage point from which to direct yard work.
- 5 With the full basement option, crawl space becomes usable space.
