

The Wisteria House

The Town & Country Homes at High Plains Village

A little more formal, but just as friendly.

Colonial

In the Wisteria House, the downstairs living spaces are a bit more defined than in most of the other Town & Country Homes. The living room is separate from the dining room, which is separate from the great room. Still, there's a cheery openness to all these spaces. And a central hallway sort of pulls the different areas of the home together. So when we say formal, we're not talking about suit-and-tie formal. It's more like iron-your-jeans formal.

- ❶ A large kitchen pantry makes it more likely you'll have something you can make for dinner, which could mean less eating out. Despite this, you'll still like having a large kitchen pantry.
- ❷ This study can also serve as another bedroom – and with its own walk-in closet and a bathroom nearby, a really nice bedroom.
- ❸ An option turns the loft into a fourth bedroom.
- ❹ Two walk-in closets in the master bedroom make it more likely you'll have something to wear if you decide to ignore what's in the pantry and go to a restaurant.
